Montez, Lola (1818–1861)

by Michael Cannon

This article was published in Australian Dictionary of Biography, Volume 5, (MUP), 1974

Lola Montez (1818–1861), dancer and courtesan, was born in Limerick, Ireland, and christened Maria Dolores Eliza Rosanna, daughter of Ensign Edward Gilbert and his fourteen-year-old wife who claimed descent from Spanish nobility. Her father died in 1824 and her mother married Major John Craigie, later adjutant-general of the British army in India. Educated at boarding schools in Britain and France, Lola was ordered by her mother at 19 to marry an aged judge; instead she eloped with Lieutenant Thomas James whom she married in Ireland on 23 July 1837. In 1839 James took her to Simla, India, but eloped with another woman. Lola returned to England in 1842 and James won a judicial separation on the ground of her adultery on shipboard.

Lola visited Spain and trained as a dancer, calling herself Donna Lola Montez. She made her début before royalty at Her Majesty's Theatre, London, on 3 June 1843; although beautiful and accomplished she was hissed off the stage when recognized as James's wife. Penniless she fled to Europe, giving performances which were then considered suggestive in Warsaw, Paris and elsewhere. In turn she became the mistress of Franz Liszt, Alexandre Dumas, and Alexandre Dujarier, part-owner of La Presse. After Dujarier was killed in a duel on 11 March 1845, Lola went to Munich posing as a Spanish noblewoman. The ageing King Ludwig I of Bavaria fell in love with her, buying a large house and settling an annuity on her. Lola exerted great political influence for a time; ministries rose and fell at her bidding and she won support from radical university students. On 25 August 1847 Ludwig created her Countess Marie von Landsfeld but the Bavarian aristocracy and middle class refused to acknowledge her. On 7 February 1848 street riots broke out against her influence and on the 10th thousands of burghers marched on the palace to demand her expulsion. Presented with proof of her background and infidelities, Ludwig

Life

M. kam 1822 mit ihren Eltern nach Ostindien, wo ihr Vater im folgenden Jahr der Cholera erlag. Sie wurde von Verwandten ihres Stiefvaters in Montrose (Schottland) erzogen, später in Paris und Bath, wo sich ihre Mutter niedergelassen hatte. Um einer Konvenienze mit dem wesentlich älteren Richter Sir Abraham Lumley zu entgehen, ließ sie sich um 1836 von einem engl. Offizier nach Irland entführen, heiratete ihn dort und begleitete ihn nach Indien. Anfang 1842 kehrte sie nach England zurück und trennte sich von ihrem Mann. In London nahm M. Schauspiel- und Tanzunterricht, letzteren bei einem span. Lehrer; ein Spanienaufenthalt schloß die Ausbildung ab. Ihr Debüt in London am 3.6.1843 als „span. Tänzerin Lola Montez“ – eine geschickte Anknüpfung an das europaweite Spanienfaible seit dem Erscheinen von Prosper Merimées Roman „Carmen“ – fand jedoch weniger Beachtung als die Zeitungsberichte über ihre seit dieser Zeit behauptete span. Herkunft. Die in Dresden und Berlin gefeierte Tänzerin wurde wegen ihrer bei ihren Warschauer Auftritten für die nationalpol. Partei bekundeten Sympathien des Landes (Rußland) verwiesen; ähnlich erging es ihr in Berlin und Baden-Baden. Die Auftritte der blendend schönen, weniger durch ihre tänzerische Begabung als durch ihre außergewöhnliche Ausstrahlung auffallenden und jede Konvention mißachtenden jungen Frau machten auf der Bühne wie in der Gesellschaft gleichermaßen Furore. Von hohen Gönnern protegiert, unternahm sie Tourneen bis St. Petersburg und Konstantinopel. 1843 lernte sie in Dresden Franz Liszt kennen, 1844 begleitete sie ihn nach Paris, wo sich beider Wege trennten. Im März 1845 verließ sie Paris nach einer Affäre wegen eines Duells, bei dem ihr Geliebter Dujarier, der Herausgeber von „La Presse“, den Tod fand.

Im Oktober 1846 trat M. in München auf, wo sich Kg. Ludwig I. heftig in sie verliebte. Die öffentliche Meinung nahm Anstoß an dem herausfordernd mächtbewußten und die bürgerlichen Maßstäbe von Sittlichkeit sprengenden Auftreten M.s („Je suis la maîtresse du Roi“). Ludwigs Autokratismus steigerte sich angesichts der einmütig von allen Seiten geäußerten Verurteilung seiner Verbindung zu der „bayer. Pompadour“. Die schon seit längerer Zeit schwelende Regierungskrise kam zum Ausbruch, als der König zur Vorbereitung der Ernebung M.s zur Gräfin Landsfeld ihre Einbürgernung (Indigenat) forderte und das Gesamtministerium Abel im Februar 1847 demissionierte. Dem liberalen „Ministerium der Morgenröte“ Maurer/Zu Rhein folgte bereits im Herbst das sog. „Lola-Ministerium“ Oettingen-Wallerstein/Berks, das trotz rigorosen Eingreifens seitens des Königs die Opposition nicht mehr dämpfen konnte. Nach Straßenschlägereien zwischen rivalisierenden studentischen Verbindungen – den M. ergebenen Alemannen („Lolamannen“) und Lola-Gegnern –, der Schließung der Universität, Insultationen des Königs auf offener Straße und immer heftigeren Tumulten mußte sich

Sligo, Ireland, the only child of Edward Gilbert (c.1797–1823), an ensign of the 25th foot regiment, and his wife, Eliza Oliver (c.1805–1875), the illegitimate daughter of Charles Silver Oliver MP and Mary Green. Before the girl was two years old her father exchanged into the 44th foot regiment, which had already departed for service in India; he died there on 22 September 1823, almost immediately upon his arrival with his wife and daughter at Dina-pur, near Patna. The widow soon married Lieutenant Patrick Craigie of the 19th native infantry, and in late 1826 the child was sent to live with Craigie's relatives in

Gilbert, Marie Dolores Eliza Rosanna (1818–1861), dancer and adventuress, known by her stage name of LOLA MONTEZ, was born at Limerick in 1818. Her father, Edward Gilbert, was gazetted an ensign in the 44th foot on 10 Oct. 1822, and proceeding to India joined his regiment and died of cholera at Dinapore in 1825. He had married a Miss Oliver, a lady who had Spanish blood in her veins, and she very soon after her husband's death married a Captain Craigie. In 1826 Marie Gilbert was sent from India to Scotland to be educated under the care of some of Captain Craigie's relatives at Montrose. Her further education took place in Paris, and on its completion she went to Bath, where her mother was then residing. To avoid a marriage with an old man, Sir Abraham Lumley, she ran away to Ireland with Captain Thomas James, and on 23 July 1837 married him at Meath under the name of 'Rosa Anna Gilbert, spinster.' Her husband held a commission in the 21st regiment of Bengal native foot, and on his returning to his duties she accompanied him to India. She returned to England early in 1842, and on 15 Dec. in that year her husband obtained in the consistory court, London, an order for a divorce, by reason of her having committed adultery with a Mr. Lennox while on the voyage home. The case is entitled James v. James (Times, 16 Dec. 1842, p. 6; Morning Herald, 16 Dec. 1842, p. 6). She then studied the dramatic art under Miss Fanny Kelly, but showing more promise as a dancer, she was instructed for four months by a Spanish teacher, and after a short visit to Spain made her début at Her Majesty's Theatre, London, under Benjamin Lumley's management, on 3 June 1843, as 'Lola Montez, Spanish dancer,' but being badly received did not again make her appearance (You have heard of them, by Q., 1854, pp. 98–106; Era, 11 June, 1843, p. 5). In the 'Era' of 18 June 1843, pp. 5–6, there is a letter from her denying that she was an Englishwoman, and stating that she was born in Seville, but it is to be observed, in contradiction of this assertion, that when she came on the stage the occupants of the omnibus-box immediately cried out, 'Why, there is Betty James.' An opening was made for her at the Royal Theatre, Dresden, where, and at Berlin, her success in the rôle of a Spanish dancer was considerable. From Berlin she proceeded to Warsaw, where she associated herself with the Polish party, and was in consequence ordered to quit the country; but she was notwithstanding well received at St. Petersburg by the emperor Nicholas, and became the recipient of many costly presents. She was afterwards in Paris, where she was very intimate with Dujarier, editor of 'La Presse,' who was killed in a duel with Beauvallon on 11 March 1845. This duel made a great sensation, and led to a celebrated trial at Rouen, when Alexandre Dumas, herself, and other celebrities appeared as witnesses (LAROUSSE, Grand Dictionnaire, vi. 1365–6; American Law Journal, Philadelphia, July 1848, pp. 1–9). In 1847 she appeared as a dancer at Munich, and completely captivated the old king of Bavaria, Ludwig Carl Augustus. Five days after her appearance she was officially introduced at court, when the king said: 'Gentlemen, I present to you my best friend.' On 7 March 1847 she was naturalised by a royal ordinance, and then letters patent named her successively Baronne de Rosenthal and Comtesse de Lansfeld. The king also accorded her a pension of twenty thousand florins, and built for her a splendid mansion. Her abilities were considerable, she had a strong will and a grasp of circumstances, her disposition was generous, and her sympathies large. She exercised marvellous fascination over sovereigns and ministers. She now ruled the kingdom of Bavaria, and, singular to say, ruled it with wisdom and ability. Her audacity confounded alike the policy of the jesuits and of Metternich. Through her influence the ultramontane D'Abel ministry, which had held office for ten years, was dismissed, and another cabinet, under Prince Wallenstein, a man of liberal tendencies, was brought into power (Times, 2, 8, 9, 12, 18 March 1847). In the 'Times' of the last-mentioned date is a letter from her from 'Munich, 11 March,' giving her own version of the state of affairs in Bavaria, and in the same paper of 9 April is another letter stating that she was born in Spain, was called Lola Montez, and had never been known by any other name. The influences of Austria and of the jesuits were, however, at work against the favourite, and a free distribution of money aided in turning public opinion against her. She accorded her patronage to an association of students called the

INTEGRATED AUTHORITY FILE (GND)

The Integrated Authority File (GND) is an authority file for Persons, Corporate bodies, Conferences and Events, Geographic Information, Topics and Works. It is used above all for the cataloguing of literature by libraries, but it is also increasingly being deployed in archives, museums, projects and web applications. It is operated cooperatively by the German National Library, all German-speaking library networks and the associated libraries, the German Union Catalogue of Serials (↗ ZDB) and numerous other institutions. Contributions to the GND are made either via the networks or in direct agreement with the German National Library.

In April 2012 the GND replaced the following previously separate authority files: the German Personal Name Authority File (PND), the Corporate Body Authority File (GKD), the Subject Headings Authority File (SWD) and the Uniform Title File of the Deutsches Musikarchiv (DMA-EST file). Previous format differences were overcome through the integration of all authority records in the GND. Duplicate data records from different authority files will eventually be combined in the future.

The cataloguing codes upon which the authority records are based are the "Resource Description and Access" (RDA) for the entities which are used for descriptive and subject cataloguing such as persons, and also the "Regeln für den Schlagwortkatalog" (↗ RSWK) for entities which are used exclusively for subject cataloguing, such as topics.

Authority data simplify cataloguing while providing clear retrieval access points and the possibility to link together different information resources. The GND authority records standardise the preferred names but also provide alternative names and relations to other authority records. This has resulted in the creation of a network of related data records which is especially well suited for use in the Web, permits navigation within the authority file and thereby improves search possibilities for users. In addition, some geographic authority data contain unchanged coordinates from the ↗ GeoNames database.

The GND authority data are available to all interested parties in different ways, free of charge under licence ↗ CC0 1.0, in the following formats: MARC 21 Authority, MARC21-xml and RDFxml.

GND authority records form part of the Virtual International Authority File (↗ VIAF); they are combined with data from other national authority files.

Biographien - Merkmale

- Zuverlässigkeit, Qualität der Inhalte
- Nachhaltigkeit, Stabilität der Angebote

Empfehlungen und Vorschläge:

- Linked Open Data
- persistente URLs bzw. URN, DOI
- konsequente GND-Versorgung, GND-Abgleich und Redaktion zur permanenten Erweiterung, Aktualisierung und Präzisierung der Tp-Datensätze der GND
- Schnittstellen, z. B. GND-Beacon
- klare Lizenzregelung, optimal Open Access
- Adaption für mobile Endgeräte, Responsive Webdesign
- Quellen und –nachweise
- Literatur und –nachweise
- Porträts und -nachweise
- Kooperation mit anderen (Regional-)Biographien, Bibliographien und Portalen
- Systematische Vernetzung
- Einbindung in neue übergreifende Fachinformationsdienste sowie Forschungs- und Informationsinfrastrukturen

Biographien - Arbeitsphasen und Tendenzen
