

WikiAfrica Hour is a monthly livestreamed discussion with Wikimedia experts that focuses on subjects and issues concerning Africa's Wikimedia Movement!

Launched in 2021, WikiAfrica Hour initiates frank, sometimes controversial conversations on the last Friday of each month. The live broadcast is produced and facilitated by Wiki In Africa's Isla Haddow-Flood and Florence Devouard. Donia Domiaty is the current WikiAfrica Hour production coordinator. WikiAfrica News, prepared by Nonny Ntshahla and presented by Nonny and Donia, ensures Africa's Wikimedians do not miss out on opportunities from the wider global Open community.

In 2024, key figures from the community are guest hosts in a revitalized format of WikiAfrica Hour, which now also features an "In Focus" segment.

EPISODE #36

Guest Host: Ruby Damenshie-Brown

"I think equity is everything; about barriers and what we, as a movement, can do to overcome those barriers that prevent people from having the same possibilities" - Ciell

Episode #28: The state of diversity, equity & inclusion in the Wikimedia Movement

"I was a few months into the WMF role and new to the movement. Being on the podcast helped me understand the movement better and build meaningful connections." - WikiAfrica Hour Guest, WikiAfrica Hour Guest Survey, 2023

"There is more that we can actually achieve in Wikimedia than just contributing and adding articles. There's a very huge social aspect to it. So the fact that it came and brought people together - we still see different people, different cultures, different types of people contributing to Wikimedia. [This] is contributing to a very large aspect of SDG16, [which] is one of the first that I see really working within the community." - Romeo Ronald Lomora

"My participation in WikiAfrica Hour allowed my entire community, family, and friends to discover me, to hear me express my passion, and it was a source of pride for me. In most of the supportive messages I received, it was said: 'You have found your path,' 'You are on the right track,' 'Keep it up,' or 'Congratulations.' You cannot imagine the positive impact these messages of support had on me." - WikiAfrica Hour Guest, WikiAfrica Hour Guest Survey, 2023
